AI governance isn't a phase. It's a practice.

From readiness to responsible activation.

Copy out:

Fewer than 20% of AI capabilities in higher ed platforms get activated effectively. Not because the technology fails, but because governance gets added after the fact, if at all.

Through the Doctums × Element451 partnership, institutions build that governance from day one: clean data, clear guardrails, and a clear view of where they stand before scaling Bolt AI.

AI is moving faster than most institutions can govern it.

Here's what that actually looks like →

Slide 2:

Fewer than 20% of AI capabilities get activated effectively.

If Bolt AI feels underused, or governance keeps getting postponed, that gap is worth closing early.

Doctums × Element451 helps institutions build the AI governance that makes activation something IT, compliance, and leadership can all stand behind.

Hi {First Name},

AI is only as trustworthy as the governance behind it.

That's the idea behind why Doctums and Element451 came together. Doctums brings decades of practitioner experience in Higher Ed systems and delivery, and Element451 brings the enrollment technology and Bolt AI capabilities institutions are working to activate.

Together, we help institutions close the gap between what the platform can do and what it's actually being used for, starting with how AI is governed.

Right now, fewer than 20% of AI capabilities in higher ed platforms get activated effectively. The difference usually isn't the technology. It's whether governance was built in from the start.

That's where our partnership focuses, across three connected service lines:

1. Strategic Assessment: AI readiness, integration mapping, and roadmap development.
2. Implementation & Activation: SIS integrations, workflow configuration, and change management.
3. Doctums Extend™: ongoing management, Bolt AI optimization, and ongoing training.
